I. Referenced Notice, paragraph 6c, limits participation in the Mid-Career Training Course to approximately students a year. The two weeks block of instruction for which the Brookings Institution will be responsible likewise limits us this year to three courses of students each. Those limitations restrict participation in the Mid-Career Training Program to so small a number of students as to manimize the effectiveness and purpose of the Program. Note below the probable allocations of students by component in comparison with the total number of GS-13's and GS-14's presently on duty and physically available here for training:
